See you in Blacksburg in June!

- Town hall style meeting in open plenary session
- Engage with policy experts
- Get updates on recent developments
- Help shape future initiatives
- Explore opportunities to expand agroforestry in temperate regions
The Agroforestry Policy Forum will be conducted in a Town Hall Meeting style and will help build awareness among the agroforestry community regarding policy progress, opportunities, and challenges in North America, and facilitate stronger partnerships between experts, policy makers, and landowners.

As a professional organization, AFTA aims to expand its membership and pursue a more visible and proactive role to promote agroforestry research and development in the temperate region. An important part of that role will be contributing to ongoing policy analysis and regularly updated recommendations for agroforestry policy. This Policy Town Hall meeting will help conference attendees experience, absorb, and contribute to the current North American temperate agroforestry policy narrative. So come prepared with ideas and questions, and be ready to listen, contemplate, and engage in a focus on policy.

This is an all-hands conference event where everyone is welcome. Gregory O. Mori from the Center for Agroforestry at the University of Missouri will moderate and panelists will provide short remarks to start things off, providing perspectives on the current status, priorities, and challenges regarding agroforestry policy, respectively, in the USA, Mexico, Canada, and the European Union.
